

Denied Exemption Requests By County

It is important to know that all business activities are generally governed by the Governor's and Secretary's business closure orders. These orders referenced the list of industry sectors defined by the United States Census Bureau, known as the North American Industry Classification System (NAICS), and marked individual subsectors as "open" or "closed" based upon whether those subsectors' businesses are categorically life-sustaining, or otherwise necessary to assist in battling this pandemic.

For businesses that must be closed per the list, the administration created the exemption process to provide a means to identify those businesses within generally closed categories that are life-sustaining or are necessary to support the supply chain to other businesses that are open and provide life-sustaining goods or services.

The justification in each exemption request was reviewed to determine whether the specific operations described were life-sustaining or necessary to support a life-sustaining business. If the business did not appear to be in a life-sustaining subsector, and did not appear to describe a life-sustaining operation, that business may not have received an exemption. Note, however, that businesses are permitted to continue life-sustaining activity regardless of whether it obtained or was denied an exemption. For example, essential personnel would be permitted to process payroll and insurance claims, maintain security, and engage in similar limited measures on an occasional basis, as described in the orders and guidance. The following list includes businesses that were informed that they would not receive an exemption.

RE: Request # «SubmissionID»

Dear «ContactFirstName» «ContactLastName»:

By Executive Order dated March 19, 2020, and pursuant to powers granted to him by law, Governor Tom Wolf has ordered that no person or entity shall operate a place of business that is not a life-sustaining business, regardless of whether the business is open to members of the public. The Secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Health has issued a similar order pursuant to powers granted to her by law. These orders (the "COVID-19 Orders") are necessary to stop the spread of the novel coronavirus COVID-19.

In response to your request for an exemption from the applicability of the COVID-19 Orders, pursuant to the powers granted by law to the Governor and Secretary of Health to cope with the present disaster emergency and to prevent and control the spread of disease, it has been determined that the business operations identified above must remain closed.
